Potential additional costs:

- This is a standard transaction, so if any unforeseen matters arise including, for example (but not limited to), a defect in title which requires remedying prior to completion or the preparation of additional documents ancillary to the main transaction, this will come at an extra cost.
- If your matter concerns the grant of a new lease, rather than the assignment of an existing lease.
- If the transaction is not concluded in a timely manner or if any unforeseen complications arise.
- If the parties to the transaction are uncooperative or there is any unreasonable delay from third parties providing documentation.
- If indemnity policies are required, additional disbursements may apply.
- If the legal title is defective.
- If the legal title is not registered.

- If any of the crucial documents requested are not provided, there may be an extra cost if we have to chase for these from our client.

How long will this take?

The length of time it will take from your offer being accepted until you can move into your house will depend on a number of factors. On average, the process takes between eight and 10 weeks. It can be quicker or slower, depending on the parties in the chain. For example, if you are a first-time buyer, purchasing a new build property with a mortgage in principle, it could take four weeks. However, if you are buying a leasehold property that requires an extension of the lease, this can take significantly longer (i.e., between three and four months). In such a case, a situation additional charges would apply.
